Some of 2020's most expensive stocks sink in year-end selloff

28 December 2020

Some of the year's most expensive stocks encountered a wave of selling as investors moved to lock in gains in the last week of 2020. Zoom Video Communications Inc. and DocuSign Inc., fell more than 6% on Monday. Both companies have seen their shares soar this year amid a surge in new users and are trading at more than 20 times next year's projected sales. The average price to estimated sales multiple in the technology-heavy Nasdaq 100 Stock Index is 4.6 times, according to data compiled by Bloomberg. For more information please press here.
